INTRODUCTION

Making decision is always difficult. If it goes right, you are not going to get a huge reward, but by chance, if it goes wrong, than the entire world would blame you for your stupidity.

In fact, for corporate growth and higher remuneration, decision making is one of the major requirements. One is paid more for the decisions, accountability and responsibility rather than actually doing the work.

In this workshop, you will learn how to take good decision. Is there really something like good decision or is it a myth?

With digital technology, the need for fast decision is much greater than ever before. The tools available are of help, yet may also create more confusion if not administered properly.
